A unique setting

Nestling in a tranquil and picturesque setting that is steeped in history, Parcevall Hall Gardens are considered to be a fine example of the Arts & Crafts movement and are the only RHS and English Heritage registered gardens open to the public in the Yorkshire Dales National Park. The gardens were laid out from 1927 onwards by Sir William Milner (1893-1960), an architect, horticulturalist and plantsman, who designed them to be totally in harmony with the surrounding landscape. After purchasing the derelict shell of Parcevall Hall, then restoring and developing it as his home, he took full advantage of the site to create a unique garden that provides year round interest unrivalled in the Yorkshire Dales.

and Wharfedale

A place for relaxation

The delightful Tea Room is situated in a peaceful setting on the route between Simon's Seat and Troller's Gill. Seating eight people inside, with additional tables and chairs outside in the picturesque terrace area overlooking Simon's Seat, it's an ideal spot to relax and take in the view.

A guidebook covering the history of Sir William Milner, Parcevall Hall and Gardens (including map of the gardens and grounds), can be purchased from the Ticket Office.

Sir William Milner

A gardener's delight

Filled with surprises at each turn and corner the 24 acres of formal and woodland gardens, which include many specimen trees and shrubs collected from Western China and The Himalayas, rise up the hillside and command impressive views of Simon's Seat and Wharfedale. At the top of the gardens an alkaline soil overlays limestone rock which allowed Sir William to create a natural rock garden considered to be the finest of its kind in Northern England whilst at the foot of the hill an acidic soil overlays gritstone, making it ideal for rhododendrons. There are also woodland trails, a herb garden, old camellia walk and the chapel garden to enjoy. The grounds are a gardener's delight, as well as being a wonderful place to visit for anyone looking to enjoy a tranquil stroll in glorious surrounds.

The Grade II listed Hall is not open to garden visitors and is used by the Diocese of Leeds as a retreat house and conference centre, but its architectural features can be appreciated from several vantage points.
